How will my involvement support my goals for my time at the UW?

One personal goal I have for myself is to start applying for jobs to start my work experience! Similar to my academic goal, to achieve my personal goal, I plan to manage my time wisely to avoid procrastination and work on completing my resume while finding possible places that are hiring.

Being “successful” at UW does not only mean passing all my classes, getting into my intended major, and graduating. For me, being “successful” at UW also means finding a good balance with the various aspects aside from academics, such as social interaction and physical/mental health! Not comparing myself to others, not putting too much pressure on myself, eating enough meals a day, staying hydrated, and prioritizing quality time with my family/friends/loved ones are some of the many things that will help me be “successful” at UW!
